

Subject: Re: Havards - whatever happened to the "Havard Nextgen website project?"

Date: 2024-11-04 14:54

From: Hugh McCormack <h.mccormack@ntlworld.com>

To: Jane Thomas <janewt123@icloud.com>, Brendan Blake <brendan@erwwen.co.uk>

Cc: Simon Reeves <treasurer@siophavards.cymru>, <cliveahooper@hotmail.com>, Clive Hooper <chair@siophavards.cymru>, Chris Morgan <secretary@siophavards.cymru>, <sj.reeves38@gmail.com>

Afternoon all

This is news to me too.

Although I know the topic of Click n Collect has been around for a while, my understanding was that Nextgen was shelved until the EPOS system was bedded in and producing what was needed e-commerce. When that point had been reached we would come back to the 'Nextgen' project, reform the team to consider and recommend options to take the Havards' e-presence forward. That was definitely the last word a couple of months back.

Admittedly that was before the 'dig up Newport's main road' jeopardy had been revealed – which may be part of the current thinking to fast track click and collect???

So I'd suggest that we have an open discussion next week when we should be meeting again?

Cheers for now

Hugh

Pembs: 01239 821 612

Notts: 0115 914 2887 [1]

m: 07768 324206 [2]

e: h.mccormack@ntlworld.com