

Brendan Blake

From: Brendan Blake <brendan@erwwen.co.uk>
Sent: 23 January 2025 13:41
To: Hugh McCormack
Subject: More reading.....
Attachments: Domain Request - with responses.docx

Hi Hugh,

While I was pleased to hear that the Director's have finally accepted my arguments about keeping the Domain Registrar (the curiously named "Porkbun" service) from the website hosting and development service, I would like you to be aware that it was only because I have put a large amount of effort into preventing Havards from giving away "Your Crown Jewels".

Please see the attached note which I received via Clive. Please note that it shows that I was instructed to "give the Domain keys to Modern". Clive tells me the document was written by Chris.

This document clearly shows that Chris has very little understanding of how Domain names and the worldwide domain name system (DNS) work. (Or the cause of recent issues).

Indeed, if one of my students had demonstrated this level of understanding they would not have received a good mark!

I feel I am doing battle constantly with Havards Directors who without question accept the advice of someone who pretends they know everything and yet do not. What am I supposed to do?

PS – are you interested in Astronomy – this is what is keeping me busy this morning: <https://youtu.be/-p0OG61WFDk> I do the website – and just posted this excellent introductory video. It was produced by RAS, not me!

Best wishes,
Brendan